What is the difference ?

IPAD

Manufactured by Apple

new iPad range from $400 and up to $1000
For the basic iPad

The iPad can be intergraded with iPhones.

You can buy a subscription to iTunes that allows you to buy music.

The cheaper models cannot expand the memory
with a memory card.

Some of the google apps are not available on iPads

Tablets

Manufactured by many manufacturers.

Samsung, Asus, Lenova, Dell and several more.

A tablet can be purchased for $100 and up.
A popular brand is Samsung about $200, with most models you can expand the memory with a memory card.

All google application are available on tablets.
For Example: you can use your tablet as a GPS by using the google map application. (presently not available in iPads.)

One application I could not find for my tablet was iTunes.

What should you look for when buying a tablet.

First: determine your needs.
What will the tablet be used for.

Second: how much memory will I need. Before you buy you want to make sure the unit is expandable to suit your needs.

Third: what is the price range can I afford to spend.

Forth: what is the best tablet I can buy

What is the best tablet I can buy ?

Samsung and iPads are the most popular.

Many other brands on the market, and some are below $100.

I recommend you go on the internet and search for

The 10 best tablets you can buy
Best Tablet Reviews – Consumer Reports

Tablets

Buying a non popular tablets.

In this example I used the

Huawei MediaPad M3 (32GB) tablet

Where can you get help and information ?

If you have the internet available go to YOUTUBE and make a research on the product in question.

For this tablet I search for Huawei MediaPad M3

Here is what I found.
